

MAGNET HOMOGENEITY DESIGN METHOD

Abstract of Disclosure

A method is provided of designing a magnetic resonance imaging magnet. At least one correction coil is positioned about the axial bore of the magnet which receives patients. The correction coil is used in the design process to reduce lower order harmonics generated by the magnet. Homogeneity of the magnetic field is thereby improved at selected volumes around the magnet.

106207 03323660

[illegible]